I just took the Testmasters prep course and the Exam last week. I took Water Resources so I can't speak to the depth portion. I had the majority of the references but I basically only used my notes for the AM. In the PM I got into a few books I had brought. I do highly recommend the Lindenberg units conversion booklet. That one is good.

Every teacher prepares his own course notes, so they are all slightly different in layout between sections. The one thing I did do was to break the Testmaster's notes into about 6 or 7 separate notebooks(one for trans, one for geo, etc..) with tabs for the important stuff. I used these notes instead of the CERM almost exclusively.
