I had my Scout Sportfish out yesterday, with a 1996 Honda BF90A four stroke. When starting, I pushed the throttle button on the remote control to go into neutral to start. The BF90A started, no problem, but wouldn't come out of neutral in either forward or reverse.

All in all, very un-Honda-like behavior. The EFI on the new motor fixes this little problem, but that doesn't help the many owners of the previous-generation BF90, which was introduced back in 1998. And other than the bogging issue, I think the BF90 has been a great motor. It certainly is the model that put Honda on the map in the walleye belt.
