TBH, increasing power output also put extra strain on cooling system and TD42 is known for overheating so aftermarket radiator with increased capacity and properly functioning engine fan is a must. The next level is scary (extensive as if the other mods aren't) as that involves the fuel pump insides modifications (fuel plunger size up).

I own a LWB GQ wagon with more kilometres on the clock than I care to remember. It's running a TD42 engine with a DTS turbo kit that was installed when I picked it up about 5 years ago. Recently the engine has started to blow blue smoke and use a far bit of oil, so I'm planning to pull it off the road and have the engine rebuilt.

I would say that engine life will be some what short running that kinda power ...
